Excerpt: . --this being the Assyrian name for Venus;--and, however trifling the sum thrown to her may be, its refusal would be unlawful, because the silver so offered becomes sacred, and is applied to religious purposes. The woman is obliged, therefore, to follow him, and the two repair at once to one of the semi-secluded alcoves of the temple designed for the purpose in view. At length, having performed her duty to the goddess, she returns home, and cannot be again subjected to the ordeal, whatever may be the sum of money offered her. Those who are fortunate enough to be pretty or elegantly dressed do not remain long in the temple. The homely and otherwise less-favored must stay longer, because they are not able to so readily fulfill their mission, and for this reason some have been obliged to dwell there for three or four years. This practice resembled that of the consecrated prostitution so common among phallic-worshipping people, in the fact that sexual union under these divine auspices was considered both proper and holy, but its object was, of course, different from that which governed the profession of the women of the temple. In the vast majority of cases, the women who thus presented themselves at the temples were maidens, whose purpose it was to sacrifice their virginity to the patron deity. From time immemorial virginity has been regarded as divinely sacred, and has universally been looked upon as belonging exclusively to the...
